COLONIAL RECORDS.

The State issued some years ago ten volumes of "Colonial Records." It is now issuing eleven volumes of "State Records." The numbers run consecutively for both the sets of records. The eighteenth volume is nearly ready. The copy for the nineteenth, twentieth and twenty-first is in the printer's hands. The twenty-first will be devoted to the index. The copy for the three volumes of the "Histories of North Carolina Regiments in the Confederate Service" is also in the printer's hands, save as to the history of three regiments, but the latter is written and will be here in a few days.

MR. POU'S VOUCHERS.

At the request of J. H. Pou, your correspondent examined vouchers for the $1,800 paid him out of the State treasury. He did not get a cent of this personally, but employed lawyers in fifty or sixty counties to take evidence in the tax assessment case, to be submitted to Judge Simonton, and for fees to clerks and notaries. If the State wins the case part of the money will be refunded, in the shape of costs. Mr. Pou merely acted as an agent, so to speak, in employing attorneys for counties or groups of counties. That as to payment from the treasury to Simmons, Pou Ward and Dortch; this was not for attorney's fees at all, but was a disbursement of a legislative appropriation which was a compromise of the oyster entry claims in Carteret and Pamilico. Not'a penny of it was for professional services, but the lawyers above named received the sum total and disbursed it among the county officials of Pamilico and Carteret and Pamilico. mend that the Legislature do one of three things-redistrict the State, apportioning a larger number of counties to the institution here, or increase the appropriation for Morganton, or build another institution.

The board, in the comprehensive report of this year, also exhibits the operations of all the private and denominational or municipal orphanages and hospitals, the number of which and extent of the good accomplished is surprising. The full account of this humane work in our State has never been gathered before this report.

The board, in approving the report, passed a resolution of thanks to Captain Denson, secretary, in view of the great amount of work accomplished during the year, 'for his valuable report and uniring efforts in behalf of the charities."

The absence of Major S. W. Reid, of Mecklenburg, through lilness, was much regretted.

SOMETHING ABOUT NORTH CAROLINA RAILROAD.

Wilmington, N. C., Dec. 22.—Mr. T.
C. McNeely, general superintendent of the Carolina Northern Railroad, now being built from Lumberton, N. C., to Marion, S. C., returned yesterday to Lumberton, after having spent a couple of days in the city on business.

The Carolina Northern has been completed for fitteen miles, within two miles of Barnesville, Robeson county, an trains are being operated daily between Lumberton and that point. At Proctorville, ten miles from Lumberton, the new road crosses the Atlantic Coast Line's branch line between Eirod and Boardman.

In a few days the track will be laid to Barnesville and about the ist of January work will be commenced on the extension from Barnsville to Marjon, S. C., a distance of twenty-cight miles. The road will be forty-three miles long when completed and it will be a first-class railway in every way, the track being laid with sixty-pound steel rails the entire length of the road. The new road passes through a magnificent farming country, and the timber area which it opens up is one of the finest in the Southern States. It is practically an undeveloped country, and as fast as the new road is being built new towns are springing up, new stores are being started and various industries are put on foot. There is already much building along the line. There are now four sawmills on the fifteen inlies of road, and as soon as the track reaches Barnesville two or more mills will be erected there.

The large lumber plant of the Southern Sawmills and Lumber Company, which was burned July 7th at Kingsville, five miles from Lumberton, is being rebuilt on a much larger scale and is nearly completed. The new mill will have a capacity of 6,000 feet of lumber per day.

ANCIENT THINGS SOLD.

of Old-Time Apparel-The Lonely Little

(From the Charlotte Observer.)

Charlotte, N. C., Dec. 19.—Several hundred people, from various parts of the county, attended the sale of the personal effects of Mrs. Violet Colley and Miss Jane Catheart, at the old Colley residence on the Tuckaseegee road, yesterday morning and afternoon. The sale was conducted by the administrators of Mrs. Colley and Mr. John Clark, of Paw Creek, was the auctioneer.

lors of Mrs. Colley and Mr. John Clark, of Paw Creek, was the auctioneer.

Mr. H. C. Irwin and a number of others from Charlotte, who attended the sale, stated that the articles sold were, for the most part, valueless from the standpoint of utility, but, prompted either by a desire to posses the effects as souvenirs or by the excitement always aroused by the display of the ancient and curious, the crowd persistently ran the bidding into unexpected figures.

Among the first things sold were the gold dollars which were found hidden in the house after the murder of the two ladies. The only Bechtler dollar in the lot was sold to Mr. J. C. Howie, of Charlotte, for $3.50. The ten or twelve gold dollars, bearing date of the fifties and sixties, were bought by Mr. Howie and Mr. Baxter Davidson.

Two gold rings brought $4 and $5. Odd old-fashloned plates were sold for 75 cents and $1 each. The dresses worn by the two women, all made by hand, were sold in bunches or lots for much more than their intrinsic value. The sheets, which were very heavy and were woven on home-made looms, and the counterpanes were sold for about $2 each.

the counterpanes were sold for about $2 each.

For every article in the house there was an eager purchaser, and each new owner seemed to attach a special value to his or her purchase. It was estimated by Mr. Irwin last night that the total proceeds of the sale will amount to probably $500.

The deserted house and the desolate surroundings were of much interest to the crowd. The gaunt chimney and the pile of ashes, which mark the place where the women were murdered and burned, attracted many sight-seers, and there were few among them who did not shudder at the sight of the pieces of human bones which escaped the notice of the coroner's jury and were found from time to time, in the ashes and placed on a stone near by the chimney.

Price Advanced in Anticipation of February Orders For Fall Goods-Opposition to the Proposed Concentration Plan.

The Chalotte Observer of Thursday

A meeting of the Southern Hosiery at the Buford Hotel in this city yesterday. The meeting began at 10 a. hose present were Chas. Adamson of he Cedartown (Ga.) Cotton Company, the president of the association; J. F. Taylor, of Kinston, secretary; Jas. W. Cannon, of Concord; McMilian, of Talladega, Ga.; Fountain, of Tarloro; Lovejoy, of Newhan, Ga.; McLain, of High Shoals; Robert M. Oates, of Charlotte; Beattie, of Edgewood; Johnson, of Charlotte. In the process present represented 170,000 spindles.

The meeting decided upon an advance in the price of soft yarns from 17 cents on a basis of 10s, to 17½ cents, with the usuai querter cent rise for each number up to 22s.

There was a strong sentiment to make the advance 18 cents, but 17½ was made the minimum, and the question of a further advance was left in the hands of the committee on prices, composed of Messrs. Cannon, Taylor, Johnson, Gibson and Oates.

OBJECT OF MEETING.

After the meeting President Adamson talked freely with an Observer reporter. "The meeting was cailed," he said, "for the express purpose of making an advance in the price of the Southern soft yarn product. The sentiment was decidedly builtish, due to the fact that the general condition of trade in all other lines is good, and considering the rise in price of cotton and the probability of it being maintained, those who wanted to fix the price at 18 cents did not consider that the price made, 17½, was high enough to give the reasonable profits that the milis are entitled to and should have.

"The mills of the South are by no means overstocked with cotton, and it is evident that the cotton to be bought in the near future will be about on the present basis of prices, if not higher. The contracts for fall goods are made in the month of February, and this meeting was called to set the price upon which such contracts shall be taken."

THE CONCENTRATION PLAN.

'Did your association take any action on the concentration plan proposed by the Southern Cotton Spinners' Association?'' Mr. Adamson was asked.

'That matter,'' he replied, 'Is still in the hands of the committee to report, but you may say that the Southern Hoslery Spinners' Association is dead set against it, The Southern Spinners' Association admits that we have stuck to our prices. By that I mean that whatever price we have set we have stood by and secured. That association has wanted us to become a department of it, but we think that we can serve our purposes best by going tt slowed. MAN DESCRIBES HOME SCENEASY.

The Washington Post, under the head of "Minute Talks With Members of Congress," says:

"Representative Bellam" of North Carolina, is widely traveled and cultured and appreciates the beauties of his own country. 'I have araveled, said he, 'over a good portion of Europe, I have looked upon the picturesque scenery of Switzerland, grand and inspiring. During the past summer I spent but little time in my own district, obeying the wishes of the party managers that I speak in the western section of the State, and tell them from the stump something about the conditions in our own section of Tar Heeldom. Thus, I had an opportunity to revisit the mountain section of North Carolina, near the Tennessee line, and I convinced myself that there is no more beautiful scenery in the world than that locality affords. I campaigned through the wonderful Johns river valley and visited the Biowing Rock, where you can look down 2,000 feet, and can drop your coat or your hat and see it sink a couple of hundred feet, and then be whisked suddenly upward—I was about to say back upon your head or your shoulders. But it comes back again to where you are standing. The people there have more civilization than they are usually credited with. The men served on the Union armies during the civil war, and in many sections have steadfastly remained Republicans since that time.

partment of it, but we think that we can serve our purposes best by going it alone, and, further, that each association should work out its own salvation.

"We are in sympathy with the Southern Cotton Spinners' Association and will give it our moral support, but you can say that there is no probability whatever of our association joining in the proposed concentration plan."

Mr. Wooton had his bond in good shape, but as the commissioners decided to put out tax they did before the August election. The Democrats generally asser: that there is no doubt as to its constitutionality, and that the Republicans will not even test the law. A prominent Republican said a few days ago that he never wanted to see the law tested, as he thought the amen men the best thing for all parties. He said that many Republicans were really glad to see the negro eliminated in this State, and favored the amendment, even though some of them voted agomst it in August for the sake of regularity.

THE LATE CENSUS.

WHY NORTH CAROLINA HAS NO LARGE CITIES.

The New Bern Journal says:

"The United States census of 1900 shows that North Carolina has no large cities that can be really so considered by the size of their population.

"When mention is made that the metropolis of North Carolina has a population of a few thousands over twenty thousand, it must cause a smile when a place of such a population is hardly known as a city, much less a metropolis in other States.

"When the average North Carolinian goes to Wilmington, Charlotte, Raieigh or Greensboro, he feels as though he was in a large city, and so he is by comparison with the same country town he lives in, or by the change from a farm.

"To the people of these cities where." from a farm.

"To the people of these cities, whose populations are now made public, the number of their inhabitants must be disappointing.

"But to the careful observer or the student of how cittes grow in population there is an unmistakable reason, a logical and well defined reason, why North Carolina has no large cities, and even anore, why in the future, unless present conditions change, there will be no specially large cities in this State.

present conditions change, there will be no specially large cities in this State.

"North Carolina being an agricultural State will be given by some as a cause for no large cities. But this rule does not hold good, for other agricultural States can be named which have cities with large populations.

"The reason in North Carolina is due to its peculiar commercial dealings at home and abroad, and that these commercial transactions are carried on is due to the railroads which traverse the State, passing through it from north to south.

"Consider the traffic passing over any of the great trunk systems through this State, and it will be found that foreign—that is, goods from other States—are coming to Raleigh, Charlotte, Greensboro or Asheville, and their home products are being carried by these same railroads to other States.
"There are no places in North Carolina which can be called great home markets for the State's products, where capital centres, where people centre and build up great business houses, and so a great population, with ample capital, grows into a great city with one or more hundred thousand population.

"These great railway systems, admirable in their way, create no large cities, because they have no terminals in the State. Raleigh is a station, Greensboro and Charlotte are stations, where passengers may get a meal, or here may be a shift of engines.

"But where are the railroads running from the West to East, carrying the State's varied products to the coast, where the products are to be handled, and be used at home or shipped abroad?

"It is this way station situation of North Carolina cities which operates against their growth, and becoming large cities, and which must contiaue, for it is against the interests of the railroads that any change be made in their long hauls of passengers and freight, and without railroads East and West, to carry home, and foreigh products to cities in the State, to be handled be felt or expressed over census returns." He has been living in Seattle for about eight years and is doing a prosperous mercantile business there. GROWTH OF SEATTLE,

"Seattle has gone ahead of every city on the Pacific coast save San Francisco and it has been predicted and is believed by some of the most tarsighted and prominent men of affabre in this country that another tenyears will put Seattle on a level with that city. When you take into consideration that in 1880 Seattle was a small town of only 3,000 people and today has nearly 102,000 population, it does not seem out of the range of possibilities to assume that such a prediction would come true. Seattle possesses many advantages over the Southern metropolis. The whole State of California is at the mercy of the Southern Pacific Railraod, while we practically have five trans-continental roads running into our wonderful little city, thereby insuring cheaper freight rates than are afforded the San Francisco merchants. Then we are much nearer the ports of the Orient and Seattle is completely in the lead when it comes to the wonderful commerce that has sprung up between the States and Alaska. I could go on and enumerate many other advantages possessed by Seattle over other Western cities, but suffice it to say that at no distant day Seattle will be found in the same column with the other great cities of the world.
